

Arabic on a motorbike

By Adrian Wilson

"Travelling around all the Mediterranean countries on my motorbike was a life-long dream come true. Experiencing the cultural differences, the sights and the sounds on two wheels gave me a unique insight into all these fascinating and unforgettable countries.

To make the most of my trip I wanted to be able to communicate with Arabic people and as part of my preparation I decided to follow a course of private Arabic language tuition at Peartree Languages.

My tutor, Ahmed, was excellent and taught me not only the key words and phrases that I would need to 'survive' in an Arabic speaking country, but also gave me indispensable advice on local customs and cultural practices. More than anything, having learnt some Arabic I made many friends along the journey."
